POLITICAL POINTERS.

Cold Weather Cuts No Figure at Traverse

City. TRAVERSE CITY, Oct. 6 .- Yesterday was republican day at the fair grounds and notwithstanding the cold, raw wind and scudding clouds a good growd listened for one hour and a half to Capt. E. P. Allen and G. J. Diekema. There was scarcely a break in the crowd, although the air was almost cold enough to freeze. Both speakers gave a splendid exemplification of republican principles and there was food for thought at a good many Grand Traverse firesides for weeks to come.

SAULTE STE. MARK, Oct. 6 .- The littie city of Pickford in this county is the acene of a struggle last night between the two political parties. La Guavara, Oct. 6 .- A desperate battle has just taken place at Losiaques, small town on the railroad line to Va encis, at a distance about equal between that piace and Caracas, Six hun-dred are killed and many high government officials captured. Crespo has struck another decisive blow which, following upon his previous successes since the revolution begun in last March, means victory for the Cres-

Crepo has announced his determina-Matters are now getting warm for the citizens of Caracas, and the prestige of Crespo's success may cause many of them to fly to his flag. From de-tails received here the fight was a most bloody one, 600 men being left dead on the field of battle. Considering the size of the contending armies, this indicates serious fighting on both sides. But stubborn as was the resistance of the government levies, they had to fly before the Crespists, and were utterly routed. Crespo had at his dis-posal some 14,000 men, including 6,000 rought to him by General Colino, who joined him some days ago at Valencia.

Demands the Surrender of Caracas, This defeat robs Acting President Villegas Pulido of his army. All the government officials at Los Tequis and those accompanying the presi-dential army are reported to be prisoners in Crespo's camp. Crespo has made a formal demand for the surrender of the capital of Venezuela. He has backed up his demand with the announcement that he intends to enter the city of Caracas tomorrow at the head of the entire revolutionary army. La Guayara is still in the hands of the government, but it can-not hold out against the victorious Crespists if Caracas, as it undoubtedly will, opens its gates to ex-President Palacio's old and unrelenting enemy, Crespo. Foreigners out here are now in jeopardy.

IN A RUNAWAY ELEVATOR.

Nine Persons Inside, and the Thing Racing Up and Down the Shaft. Just before noon two of the elevators in the Commerce building stopped running, the one nearest to the front door alone remaining in operation. The elevators are worked by hydraulic power, and the force required to work them was thus thrown on one. It was on an up trip that eight men crowded into the elevator. Two of them were Mr. Ton-Craig and Mr. Donald Ross. The door was closed with a bang, and the boy pulled the lever for the ascent. In a second the throttle, as it were, was wide open. The elevator seemed traveling at the rate of sixty miles an hour, and appeared every second to be getting on more steam. The elevator boy worked manfully at the lever and used every means to stop the "lift," but the machine refused to take hold, and the wild career upward continued. Suddenly the cage stopped with a jolt, and the elevator started down at the same killing pace it had been going upward. Down two stories it dropped, and then as suddenly began ascending again. By this time all on board wished they were somewhere else. They looked wildly out on the polished floors, where safety was, and for the first time realized what a prison a runaway elevator is.

Though the boy at the lever exhausted every resource of his art, now resorting to skill and now to strength, the movements of the elevator became more and more eccentric. It went up twenty feet and fell ten. The men thought they might have led better lives.

It went up thirty feet and fell fifteen. The elevator boy thought of some mean things he had done. It went up ten feet and fell twenty.

All resolved that if they got out alive they would walk straight and narrow paths for the rest of their lives. It went up fifteen feet and fell thirty. and then it darhed with deadly speed to ward the roof, and all the sins that the eight caged men and the one caged boy had ever done rushed before them like a host of devils. But it stopped just in time, and once more reversed brakes It stopped with cruel jolfs now and then, but always between the floors, leaving those on board still caged in by grove of Hastings, president of the by Mrs. Crossman today from friends wire walls. Time and again it seemed state league of republican clubs, has of the actor, making inquiries as to his certain that it would halt at one of the appointed Gen. G. M. Devin of this condition.

Finally, after what seemed an eternity of torture, the elevator did stop two feet below one of the doors. Mr. Craig was closest to the exit, and hastily throwing back the door he leaped forward and to people out of employment. Loss, out. Just as he did so the machine shot upward, and it was only by a hairbreadth that he escaped being crushed and almost certainly killed.

After his escape the elevator continued to perform for a minute and then once more became obedient. The seven mer and the boy got out as quickly as pesable. All were very thankful. The elevator was examined and found to be in good working order. The elevator boy got on board and tried it for a floor or two, and returning pronounced every when dyed no one could tell that they railey road, near Samiy Greek, this thing all right. Effect of Domestication. Domestication modifies and often changes the instinct of wild animals to persecute or at least neglect the sick or injured, perhaps because the lessened strain of the struggle for existence leaves room for sentiment to grow Both dogs and cats often aid their kind when sick, and strange alliances spring up between pets of different species. Perhaps the best known instance is that of the raven which Dickens saw at Hungerford, which used to carry bones to a broken legged retriever. And the quickness with which dogs learn that their master is ill and show sympathy is well established.-London Spectator.

An Interesting Rumor About Tea. A Chinese official, high in authority, states that it is customary to preserve dead bodies by inclosing them in a box of tea.
